

Peer Review Process and Procedure

Authors are invited to submit their papers to the journal through the submit button given below. The submissions may also be accepted by email: vedicscience@hotmail.com.

After the paper is received, the paper's composition and arrangement against the journal's Author Guidelines will be checked to make sure it includes the required sections and stylizations. The quality of the paper is not assessed at this point.

At the next stage the concerned EIC checks that the paper is appropriate for the journal and is sufficiently original and interesting. If not, the paper may be rejected without being reviewed any further.

After the paper is accepted by the concerned EIC, it will be referred to a suitable editor or a member of the editorial Board to get it peer-reviewed.

The handling editor or member of the editorial board refers the paper to two peer-reviewers already in the list of journals or outside the list who are assessed as appropriate reviewers. The reviewers will go through the papers keenly provide a detailed point-by-point review and submit it to the editor with a recommendation to accept it or reject it or else with a request for revision before it is published.

The handling editor will consider all the reviews before making an overall decision. If the reviews differ widely, the editor may invite an additional reviewer so as to get an extra opinion before making a decision.

The authors will be informed accordingly including any relevant reviewer comments.

If accepted, the paper is sent to production. If the paper is rejected or sent back for either major or minor revision, the handling editor will include constructive comments from the reviewers to help the author improve the article. If the paper is sent back for revision, the author should send a new version. However, where only minor changes are highlighted this follow-up review will be done by the handling editor.